Charged With Killing Her Husband After Party in Germany

Frankfurt, Germany, Oct. 21 (AP)—A pretty American brunette, pale and dazed with shock, was arraigned in a U. S. court today on a warrant charging her with the murder of her young air force lieutenant husband after a quarrel with one of their female friends.

Mrs. Yvonne Madsen, 22, mother of two small children, is accused of shooting her 25-year-old husband, Lt. Andrew W. Madsen, of Oakland, Calif., through the heart early yesterday in the living room of their home near the Rhine-Main airport. The air force said the shooting followed a gay party at the home of friends.

Judge T. T. Marjoe adjourned the preliminary hearing until Monday to give Mrs. Madsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Noack of 1612 Sixth ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., time to select counsel. Frankfurt District Attorney Fred Johnson said he would file a first degree murder charge against her.

Mrs. Madsen was dressed in a high-necked gray dress when she was brought to the courtroom from a hospital where she had been under treatment for prostration. She blinked dazedly as the American prosecutor agreed to postpone the hearing.

The courtroom was filled with air force officers and their wives from the little American community near Frankfurt where the fliers live.

Irish Vessel Goes to Albany; Skipper Sees Kerr

Capt Dennis Clanzillo of the good ship Irish Oak had a right to feel a little bit like Hendrick Hudson when he arrived in Albany today.

He wasn't looking for a short route to China nor was his first ocean-going ship after Hudson's Half Moon to ply the upper Hudson, but his Irish Oak is believed to be the first ship of the Irish Republic to go any further than New York Bay or perhaps the Balmores.

The trip from Dublin to this country had another meaning for the captain for a little more than half way up the river to Albany he stopped to say hello to an old friend and former colleague, John Kerr, keeper of the Esopus light.

The Irish Oak anchored about two miles south of the city last night and the lighthouse keeper and the captain talked awhile of the days when they served together in Ireland's Coastal Defense. This was from 1922 through 1924 and it's been a long time since they've had a chance for a handshake.

The ship, only three months old, is a 7,300-ton intermediate passenger and freight craft, and carried 12 passengers who were scheduled to land at Albany. The ship traveled under ballast coming over and was due to go back with a load of grain from Albany.

With the crew and passengers, who Kerr said, were mostly Americans, was the Rev. J. P. O'Dowd, chaplain. Many of the passengers were headed for California, Kerr said.

The ship lifted anchor and resumed its trip toward Albany at daybreak. It had stopped about midway between the Rondout and Esopus lights.

Coal Men Walk Out of UMW Talks

Flicker of Hope Comes in Steel; Chipp Says He Is Not Exactly Optimistic

Lewis Is Accused Operators Feel Leader Would 'Destroy' Coal Industry

(By The Associated Press)
Coal operators walked out on contract talks with the United Mine Workers today. But there was a flicker of hope that a break may come in the steel strike.

Northern and western mine operators left White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where negotiations designed to end the five weeks old coal strike, were being held.

They accused John L. Lewis of being willing "to destroy" the coal industry "in his mad race for power." They said they would meet with union leaders again when the union leaders show they are ready "to consider our employees and the industry."

The situation in the costly, 21-day steel strike, says Cyrus S. Ching, federal mediation chief, "is not hopeless."

But, Ching said in a statement in New York last night after conferences with U. S. Steel Corporation officials, "we do not want to create the impression that there is a basis for optimism."

Ching's hint of hope, coupled with a warning against optimism, followed earlier comment by President Truman that he has no present plans for intervening in either the steel or coal strikes or for seizing either industry.

Ching's statement came as the continuing steel strike choked off much of the nation's industrial activity and made idle more than a million workers.

Ching and other top mediation officials planned to meet again today with representatives of "big steel." They hope to get the steel companies and C.I.O. United Steelworkers to resume negotiations and attempt to settle their dispute over free pensions.

There was some progress in the coal strike, insofar as the southern operators were concerned, but northern and western operators appeared hopelessly deadlocked with John L. Lewis. The groups were to continue their contract talks today, the southern owners at Bluefield, W. Va., and the northern and western operators at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Lewis was not at the meetings which ended at setting of a five-week-old walkout of some 380,000 miners. He was in Springfield, Ill., visiting his 91-year-old mother who is seriously ill.

Further curtailments of industry were reported because of the twin strikes. In New York city, the New York Central Railroad announced that at midnight Saturday it was eliminating 89 steam-operated passenger trains because of dwindling coal supplies. Local, branch line and suburban service will be affected in 11 states.

Steel shortages, which have hit many industries, threaten to force the layoff of thousands of workers in the auto industry if the steel strike is not settled.

The first contract ending the walkout against one steel company was announced at the office of Philip Murray, C.I.O. and United Steelworkers president. It was with the Copperweld Steel Company of Glassport, Pa., which employs 4,100 workers. The union said a six-cent non-contributory pension plan, which was recommended by the presidential fact-finding board, was included.

In the coal dispute, the southern operators have agreed to continue miner pensions under certain conditions and no longer will demand an end to the half-hour paid lunch period.

Joseph E. Moody, president of the Southern Coal Producers Association which represents about a sixth of the soft coal industry, said "it might be surprising how close together the operators and union were on welfare fund coverage."

"... Which Equals the Best Cancer Care in the World"

(This is Blakeslee's story, which was filed in Kingston Thursday for Associated Press morning papers. It was sent out on a national wire. In a story for evening papers, Blakeslee used virtually the same material. His lead began, "Ulster county's 87,000 people today have the best small-community cancer clinic in the world. . . ." Strong language? It is the statement of this Pulitzer Prize winner who knows. It is with pride and much pleasure that The Freeman gives its readers The Blakeslee Story).

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

Kingston, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP)—Ulster county, a community of 87,000 persons including this city, dedicated here today a tumor clinic, self-sponsored by its doctors and citizens, which equals the best cancer care in the world.

The tumor clinic cost $45,000, one-third from Hill-Burton federal funds, and the other $300,000 paid by the citizens in taxes.

This new clinic makes Ulster the first small community in the United States to set up its own complete cancer service.

The latest in all cancer detection, diagnosing and treating equipment has been placed in this three-story clinic building. It can handle 100 new cancer cases a day. It has a paid medical staff of nine, and every doctor in Ulster is back of the clinic's work. Treatment after the clinic experts decide what is best, will be given in the county's general hospitals, which are nearby. But X-rays will be given in the clinic.

The clinic has arrangements to receive advice and cooperation from the great cancer institutes throughout the country. It also plans research right here, and teaching of cancer work to doctors of this community and neighboring counties.

Ulster county has averaged 311 new cancer cases yearly, with 1200 other cases which are holdovers. The six surrounding counties average 1300 new cases yearly and have an estimated 5000 or more other cases.

Ulster's new clinic experts to serve all these others in addition to its own citizens. It expects also that the service will pay for itself, at the usual rates doctors charge in this section of New York.

The cost to Ulster taxpayers to build this clinic is about $3.00 a year each for ten years.

The county pays for care of its own indigent cancer patients. Elissa Landi, stage and screen actress, who lived in Kingston and died of cancer about a year ago, left a check for the clinic. Other checks followed.

These checks were used to start the Ulster County Clinic Foundation, Inc., which will receive gifts and use them for those unable to meet full costs of treatment.

The story of two men tells how the cancer clinic grew. One is Dr. J. Sportswood Taylor, native of Danbury, N. C., Johns Hopkins medical graduate, who came here in 1934. One of his jobs as a pathologist was to examine all the Ulster county sample of suspected cancer tissues. Dr. Taylor's wife had cancer. He had to take her on trips to New York city for the treatment she needed. She died, and Dr. Taylor dreamed of a place in Ulster where other men and women with cancer could get treatment near home. Dr. Taylor is director of the new clinic. Sixty of the county's physicians have joined the clinic, and 15 dentists. The clinic has facilities for teaching dentists to recognize signs of early cancer.

The other man is State Senator Arthur H. Wicks, Republican majority leader at Albany and temporary president of the Senate. He is a Kingston man. In 1941 he noted that Ulster county stood eleventh from the top in cancer deaths.

Since then Sen. Wicks has directed the political developments for the cancer clinic. When the Board of Supervisors appropriated the $300,000 for the cancer clinic, they had to choose between cancer and a county building which was also needed.

"They felt it better," Senator Wicks said today, "to keep people healthy than to house a few public officials."

Senator Wicks sponsored a set-up which he expects will keep cancer out of politics. Dr. Taylor has complete authority over hiring and firing all medical and technical workers, and even maintenance and building people. Only the county medical society is to have any authoritative word in the clinic's direction.

As a paid clinical consultant, the clinic has Dr. Charles J. Miller, of the surgical staff of Memorial Hospital, New York. Dr. Ruth J. Guttmann, formerly of Memorial Hospital is the clinic's radiologist.

Eleventh Defendant Calls Upon Women To Halt Statism

Philadelphia, Oct. 21 (AP)—A Republican political leader called on G. O. P. women today to "declare war on the greatest single threat that America has ever faced—the menace of statism."

Rep. Leonard Hall of New York declared in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Republican women of Pennsylvania that "time is running out."

He said the country is in the hands of a "group of befuddled planners and fuzzy-minded socialist schemers" who are "sapping the life out of the American system."

"The tragic part of this picture," Hall said, "is that this is no ailment of the moment. It is a disease that will kill."

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Ten top-ranking American Communist leaders today were sent to prison for five years each for criminal conspiracy to teach overthrow of the U. S. Government by force. An eleventh was sentenced to three years.

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina imposed the sentences and fined each defendant $10,000—the maximum—in addition.

Mediators Try to End 3-State Milk Threat

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Federal, state and city mediators joined forces today in an effort to head off a three-state milk strike that would stop delivery of 6,000,000 quarts daily to 11,000,000 consumers.

The walkout is set to begin at 4 p. m. (E.S.T.) Monday unless five locals of the A.F.L. Teamsters Union reach contract agreement with six associations representing 200 milk companies.

Frank H. Brown, regional director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, called an emergency meeting today with officials of the New York City Labor Relations Division and state mediators from New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

Public Views Clinic Crowds Pass Through Large Edifice After Program

Ulster county's Tumor Clinic on city hall hill was officially dedicated yesterday with important assurance from major health sources that it would be watched nationally and in the state as an outstanding pioneer venture.

Dr. Carl Wilbur, of the American Cancer Society, said establishment of the clinic "is truly a pioneer venture, and we will follow it with interest," in the nation, and Dr. Morton J. Levin, assistant commissioner for medical services, New York State Department of Health, said the department "looks upon the founding of this clinic as one of the most significant happenings in cancer control in recent years."

Its importance as a move worthy of national attention was again stressed in the presence and statement of Howard W. Blakeslee, science editor of the Associated Press, who attended the dedication to tell the story of the clinic to the rest of the nation.

A crowd estimated close to 1,000 overflowed seating arrangement in front of the new building, heard the several talks, spoke by men who contributed important to realization of the clinic, and saw Cluett Schantz, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, cut the ribbon in formal dedication of the building.

The Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley, president of the Ulster County Board of Health, who was scheduled to participate in the dedication ceremony and accept the clinic from the Board of Supervisors, was absent because of recent illness, and the Right Rev. Martin J. Drury, a member of the board, stepped into the invocation, accepted for the board.

Change is given Msgr. Drury, following the acceptance speech, in which he stressed the important cooperation of the county legislators, presented to the care of Dr. J. Sportswood Taylor, director, the clinic building and its facilities.

Dr. Taylor, in accepting, regretted the absence of Dr. Seeley, "the one man who has been such a consolation in the effort to make the clinic a reality, and he felt his own 'tremor and uncertainty,' might express better than words his reaction to the importance of the occasion.

"Many of us have worked hard and long hours," he said, "to make the clinic a reality. But if we have paid off—we will work more, and our problems will be solved."

It is possible, he said, that in such a venture, "we might even be afraid, but I do not believe we need fear—we are going to obtain the help and facilities we need."

Upon Quality of People

The clinic now, he said, is not to "depend upon the quality of its walls and mortar, but upon the quality of the people who work there."

To him, he said, the clinic is unique. The Ulster County Medical Society is composed of a "great body of doctors," and the way in which the clinic was established through their direct work and assistance, represented action which "has not occurred anywhere else in the world to my knowledge."

With such a set-up we cannot help but succeed.

Happy To Report It

"This singular importance and significance of the clinic was stressed earlier by Blakeslee of the Associated Press who was introduced by Richard O. Gruver, city editor of The Freeman."

The newsmen said he had not expected to talk, but he felt the audience would be "interested to know why I am here." Ordinarily, (Continued on Page 3, Col. 1)

Officials Attend Luncheon Program Of Nursing Group

City and county officials who had prominent parts in the opening of the Ulster County Tumor Clinic Thursday afternoon were guests of the Ulster County Public Health Nursing Committee at their annual luncheon meeting.

The luncheon was held at the First Baptist Church on Albany avenue and was attended by more than 100 lay members of local nursing committees, officials of the health department and other interested persons.

Harry Snyder, chairman of the Post-War Planning Committee of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors, invited those present to attend the opening ceremonies.

He noted the widespread interest in the opening of the clinic and pointed out that already six or seven inquiries have been received as to when persons may come into the new clinic for treatment.

Others who welcomed the public health nursing committee members included Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, Claret Schantz, chairman of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors, and Dr. George W. Weber, director of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital.

The officials paid tribute to the lay members of the nursing committee, stating that the official agencies still need the aid of interested citizens to keep to the standards of medical work established in this county.

Mayor Newkirk stated, "I wonder how far this country could have progressed (in the field of public health) without the interest of people and groups, such as you."

A brief history of the organization of public health nursing committees in this county was given by Mrs. Edgar M. Clarke, Jr., of Milton, president of the county committee. She recalled that it was in 1922 that the project was first mentioned at Milton at a Home Bureau meeting. The suggestion was taken up as a public health nursing committee formed for the towns of Lloyd and Marlborough, she said.

The idea spread and by 1935 the local committees organized on a county-wide basis, forming the present organization known as the Ulster County Public Health Nursing Committee, she said.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Dr. Edward W. Winder, pastor of the host church. Later in the program he also added his welcome to the committee members.

Of interest to the members in attendance was a report given during the morning session by Dr. Joseph B. Kearney, Jr., dental director of the county health department.

The dental division, newest part of the department's program, began in February of this year and was the second public health dental division to be formed in this state, the first being in Erie county, Dr. Kearney said.

The Ulster county dental division is now staffed by a director, a dental hygienist, 12 dental clinicians and two orthodontists.

One of the division's programs has been the treatment of school children in the Ontario Central School District with topical sodium fluoride, an immunization agent to prevent dental decay. The treatments were given 50 children, each child getting four applications of two per cent sodium fluoride solution, preceded by dental prophylaxis. Although it is too early to judge the results of this treatment locally, Dr. Kearney said that the solution has proved itself in experiments during the past 15 or 20 years.

Among the others who addressed the meeting was Miss Katherine M. Murphy, R.N., executive secretary of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association. She urged members to vote "Yes" on Amendment 7 at the coming general election. This amendment, she explained, would enable New York city to borrow $150,000,000 beyond its debt limitation for the purpose of a hospital rehabilitation. This would benefit Ulster county, she said, because many metropolitan area patients now come here for treatment, using room in local hospitals.

For Delicious Waffles

Before using a new waffle iron, season it by preheating the appliance for 3 to 10 minutes with the cover closed before brushing both grids with a small amount of unsalted cooking fat or salad oil. Continue heating for two or three more minutes with the grids closed. Excess grease can be removed with absorbent paper or by baking one or two slices of bread between the grids, electricians advise.

"Every citizen of the county of Ulster can look to this building and say, 'I had a share in that' and feel justly proud because this building and all it represents is an expression of the unselfishness of free Americans."

Dr. Levin Recalls 'History'

Dr. Levin, who had also participated in the laying of the cornerstone for the clinic, slightly more than a year ago, yesterday delivered the following address:

"This clinic as it stands is a symbol and a sign, testifying to the vision of the physicians and the people of this county. It is also a promise—that here in Kingston men, women, and children, faced with one of the most serious afflictions to which flesh is heir—will find in this clinic the greatest aid and support that modern science can give them."

To make this clinic possible, many men and women have worked, pleaded, schemed, and fought. I do not know them all. I would like especially to mention Dr. Spot Taylor, Dr. Francis O'Connor, Harry Snyder, and the Rev. Frank Seeley. The members of the Ulster County Medical Society Committee, which four years ago began to plan this clinic, should be noted: Dr. William Bush, Dr. Frederick Snyder, Dr. Frederick Holcomb, Dr. Frederick Voss, Dr. Berwyn Mattison, Dr. Edward Shea, Dr. Charles O'Reilly, Dr. Taylor, and Dr. O'Connor. And, I want to particularly note the continued interest and efforts toward this clinic by Senator Wicks, in which I know he has been concerned not only with the needs of Ulster county but with the example which the clinic will present to the entire state. To them, to the County Board of Supervisors, to many other individuals, and to the people of this county, I wish, in the name of the State Department of Health, to extend congratulations and good wishes.

As we look backward, with pride, toward what has been accomplished, we must look forward, with determination, to the more difficult job which lies ahead. That is the job of making this clinic the center and focus of activities which will materially reduce suffering and death from cancer. That job cannot be done by this clinic alone. It requires courage and intelligence on the part of the people of this county and all the other communities which it will serve. It means that we, the people, must be willing to learn; we must be willing to work more closely with our doctors; we must be willing to practice what they preach.

"This clinic is not the answer to the cancer problem, but it is a place from which we can learn some of the answers. This clinic cannot replace the private physician or his office as the first place to which to go when there is a question of cancer. If we try to make it do that, we will defeat its purpose and its usefulness. This clinic is rather highly specialized resource to which the doctor can turn when it is needed."

General View of Tumor Clinic Ceremonies

Blakeslee Acknowledges Introduction

Health looks upon the founding of this clinic as one of the most significant happenings in cancer control in recent years. We stand ready to extend to it all the aid and support which are within our power. And, we join with you in dedicating our future energies as we are dedicating this physical structure, to a bold and continued attack on the major scourge of cancer."

Dr. Levin in a brief statistical report, stressed that the yearly average for Ulster county is 311 new cases of cancer, and 1,300 in the six surrounding counties. On the basis of present findings, he said, 20 per cent "of all persons" may some day be expected to develop the disease in some form, and this also means about one person out of every two families.

Dedication of the clinic, he said, had a personal meaning for him, because he could remember back in 1938 when it was nothing more than "a gleam" in the eyes of those who talked about it in the lobby of a hotel. This dedication day, he said, was a realization of "that gleam."

Monsignor's Address

Msgr. Drury who accepted the clinic for the board of health and turned it over to Dr. Taylor, spoke as follows:

Senator Wicks, Honorable Mayor, Mr. Chairman, Members of the Board of Supervisors, Honorable guests, My Fellow Citizens: Due to the illness of the Rev. Dr. Seeley, the president of the Board of Health and the unavoidable absence of Dr. O'Connor, the vice-president, who is attending a very important medical conference, I have the honor and distinction to represent the Ulster County Board of Health and in its name to accept from the Board of Supervisors the responsibility of administering this Tumor Clinic for the welfare of all citizens of Ulster county."

We all regret that Dr. Seeley himself could not be here and act for the board this afternoon. He has given of himself, his energies, his time and his talents to what over cause which will benefit the citizens of this community. He has especially expended himself in behalf of the planning and completion of the tumor clinic and we sincerely regret that he is unable to be here today to enjoy the fruit of his labors. I know that I speak for all when I publicly assure Doctor Seeley of our appreciation of his labors and I know too that I express the feelings of all when I hope for him a speedy and complete recovery."

In accepting this Tumor Clinic as the representative of the taxpayers of Ulster county, may I not express to the Board of Supervisors the sincere appreciation of our citizens for this outstanding service which it is providing for the health of this community. The Board of Supervisors, under its capable, far-seeing and courageous leaders, has given to this county a health program second to none. It has put at the disposal of the community all the machinery necessary not only for the arrest and correction of disease which has already taken hold, but even more so, for the prevention of disease before it even gets a start. Our people should take advantage of this program which the county offers through the Board of Health and inform themselves of the danger and detection of disease before it gets a start in themselves as individuals or in the community as a whole. Such education and co-operation on the part of the public can do much to raise the health of this beautiful county even higher. The Board of Supervisors has now given to this community this new Tumor Clinic built on the latest and most modern plan, equipped with the very latest scientific equipment, to detect, to arrest and to cure this ever increasing enemy. The public funds which have been entrusted to the care of the Board of Supervisors have indeed been carefully and wisely expended for the good health of the whole community. To the Board of Supervisors, therefore, which has made possible this outstanding service to the people, we the citizens of the county express our sincere appreciation."

It is understood that in receiving this tumor clinic from the Board of Supervisors it becomes the function and obligation of the Board of Health to define the policy and outline the directions by which this clinic will be operated. It is of course of prime importance that in outlining that policy that the Board of Health should have the very best and very latest of sound scientific medical advice. To that end the Ulster County Medical Society has appointed a committee of doctors from its members to act as an advisory body to the Board of Health along strictly medical lines.

Welcomes Advice

The Board of Health welcomes that advice and cooperation. And while the Board of Health as the legal representative of the taxpayers has the ultimate responsibility and authority, it feels that with the help of this medical advisory committee, the people of this county can be and will be best served. In order that the policy thus outlined might be best coordinated, and in order that the specific directions that the Board of Health might define with the help of this advisory body might be followed as outlined, the Board of Health has appointed a director in the person of Doctor Taylor as its representative to insure the carrying out of these provisions. As the representative of the members of the Board of Health, and in their name, I therefore accept this duty and responsibility and place the care and operation of this clinic in the hands of its duly appointed director, Dr. Taylor."

Never for Bureaucracy

It is to be prominently and most fervently hoped that this unique and modern tumor institution will be an outstanding example of the inherent rights of the people to support and minister to themselves within their own capacity, and for their own self-preservation—so clearly written in the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence. Let it never become an attractive instrument to be unduly utilized by the forces of bureaucracy and socialization that are already menacing and invading the lives and freedom of America and the world today.

As the representatives of the citizens of this county, we pledge ourselves to do our utmost to carry out this program to the end that Ulster county will not only be the most beautiful county, but the healthiest county in this Ranson's 26-year-old brother, Burton (Red), was arrested in downtown Columbus Tuesday. They are charged in Wadsworth with the slaying of James Malcolm Shirley, 37, of Hollis, Queens, N. Y. Shirley's body was found in a water-filled gravel pit near Wadsworth, September 9.

Senators to Cost Taxpayers $50,905

Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—The 1950-model United States senator is going to cost the American taxpayer $50,905 a year—and up.

That's the package cost in salaries and expenses for a single senator and his office staff. The bill for all 96 of them will run around $5,000,000 a year.

The cost per senator went up about $3,000 a year this week when Congress voted the money to permit senators to increase the pay of their office help or add another worker to their staff.

One midwestern senator put the blame on the taxpayer for the high senatorial costs. He didn't want his name used.

"I'm snowed under with mail," Senator X said. "We get about 1,000 letters a day in my office. That means that five or six stenographers and clerks do nothing but handle the mail. I never see most of it. I can't. Because if I tried to answer each letter personally—I'd be doing nothing but dictation all day."

A senator's pay is $12,500 a year. It's generally agreed the salary is modest enough. A top-rank ambassador receives $25,000 a year plus expenses.

But the senatorial salary is only the down payment. The real cost is in the fine print. Take the case of Senator X:

In addition to his salary, he gets another $2,500 a year for expenses. This expense money is tax free. He need make no accounting of how he spends it.

The senator comes from a state with a population of less than 3,000,000. That means he can draw $35,400 a year for his office help. Each senator is entitled to at least six office workers, an $8,400-a-year administrative assistant, and an additional $6,720-a-year aide.

Their salaries all come out of the $35,400 for office help. If Senator X goes over this amount, then he must pay the difference out of his own pocket. And some senators say they lose money on this.

In addition to salary, expense money, free office rent, and office help, Senator X gets $105 worth of free stamps each year. This is outside his free mail privilege.

He also gets $400 a year for stationery. He can have 250 minutes of long distance telephone calls for free—or 50 calls. And he receives a payment of 20 cents a mile for travel pay at each session of Congress—the amount based on the distance from Washington to his home town.

If Senator X's state ever grows above the 3,000,000 population mark, he'll get more office help. The size of his staff payroll depends on the size of his state.

A senator from a 3,000,000-5,000,000 size state gets $36,900 a year for his office expenses; the 5,000,000-10,000,000 size gets $42,420; and the 10,000,000 New York size state draws $49,920.

The new law increased Senator X's office pay pool by $11,520. This raised it from $23,800 up to $35,320.

400. But the increase isn't as big as it looks.

Now the senator must pay his administrative assistant out of the office salary pool. Heretofore, this assistant was paid separately by Congress and the cost was not included in the office expenses.

Assuming Senator X pays his administrative assistant the basic $2,400 a year, then he will have $1,120 left over. He can use the money either to hire a new office worker, to increase office wages—or both.

It so happens Senator X pays his top aide $10,000 a year. So he'll have only $1,520 out of the $11,520 increase to give pay raises to his office help.

"None of us are starving," the senator said. "But this job isn't a gravy-train even with the extras."

TRUANTS FROM SCHOOL

The well-adjusted child usually goes to school every day as a matter of course. School is a natural part of his program of living; he takes it for granted, never being absent except for illness or other reason not of his own making.

There always exists a group of habitual truants, who make attendance officers necessary. This group and its habits leading to poor attendance have been studied for a year by the Citizens Committee on Children of New York City. It concluded that truancy is a symptom of an underlying insecurity. Home problems are sometimes the basic cause, and sometimes the trouble lies with the child's relationship to teacher and fellow-students. Psychiatric help is likely to be of value in ferreting out the causes and applying the remedies indicated, according to this study.

The old idea of applying punishment by police methods has been found ineffective in handling these youthful offenders. A friendly approach, a listening ear, an open-minded attitude and understanding helpfulness are more likely to prove effective. Truancy, often the first step on the path to a career of crime, may be treated as the turning point where an ill-adjusted youngster may be straightened out and headed in the right direction.

WOMAN IN BUSINESS

One of America's most successful businesswomen became known to millions as a face on a bottle and in small advertisements appearing daily in newspapers throughout the land. For generations Lydia Pinkham's name has been a byword, but her life has been little publicized. Her fame need not rest on the virtue of her patent medicine product, but is deserved because of her success in what was a new form of advertising and because she dared to speak frankly on a topic which in her day was taboo.

A biography of this interesting woman has been written by Jean Burton, who claims kinship with Robert Burton, sixteenth century author of "The Anatomy of Melancholy," and Sir Richard Burton, translator of "The Arabian Nights." She has written a successful book about the wife of the latter.

In a day when the saying, "woman's place is in the home," was not met with raised eyebrows, Lydia E. Pinkham dared to found what became a multimillion-dollar business. The story of her life belongs in the history of the period.

HATS AND HUSBANDS

A millinery expert advises women to take their husbands with them when they buy hats. Husbands like to see their wives look pretty, she says, and any husband will gladly pay fifteen dollars for a hat he chooses himself whereas he will be likely to kick about the price of a five dollar hat the wife buys by herself.

A woman reading the item looked up and remarked: "I don't believe a word of it. I got my husband to go with me just once. He didn't seem interested in any of the hats in the first store, so I came out without buying. Then he pulled twenty dollars out of his pocket and gave it to me, saying I should buy anything I liked but never ask him to go into a hat store again. He thought any of them looked all right, but he was bored to death by my delay and indecision." Well, that wasn't a bad ending to the expedition either, was it?

We, however, refuse to enter any controversy of this nature. We neither recommend nor guarantee anything about hats and husbands.

FUNCTIONS OF GOVERNMENT

"The sole function of government is the maintenance of order and the punishment of crime," said Chief Justice Roger B. Taney more than a century ago. If his statement accurately described the philosophy of government in his day, times have changed. A government with such a limited conception of its duties would fall far short of present-day expectations, and would be lost in the

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

BIG
 The efforts of the Department of Justice to break up businesses because they are too big is an application of the Sherman anti-trust law which obviously could not have been intended originally. The A.P. for instance, is a grocery business engaged in active and not always successful competition with other groceries and the du Pont enterprises are engaged in competitive, non-monopolistic fields. They are being attacked for their size. And there is ample evidence of a resistance in the United States, among the people, to giant corporations, which spread out into diverse and unrelated fields. There is opposition to the accumulation of enterprises, to mere hugeness.

American business would be wise to note this opposition before it becomes overpoweringly articulate. Interestingly, even business men in this opposition to bigness. Legislation to curb bigness, to prevent the investment of profits in the purchase of existing and profitable enterprises, sold only to take advantage of the capital gains tax, will be passed in due course. The question is whether the businessmen will have the wisdom to curb their lust for bigness before opposition to a concentration of the exercise of control leads to legislation designed to remedy an unpopular activity but actually accomplishing an increase in the socialistic trend in government.

I have often asked the question, when is big too big? Obviously no small firm can manufacture steel or automobiles or such commodities. There must be bigness in such enterprises if they are to function at all. Yet, large firms can become extraordinarily inefficient.

I recently had an experience with the du Ponts which is a case in point. For many years, we have been using their camphor squares, bearing only their label and trade mark which we accepted as the assurance of reliability. Every year these camphor squares performed excellently, but this summer, they did some damage. I wrote the du Ponts to ask why and what could be done about it. Now, the interesting point about this is that the du Ponts advertise in the press, on the radio, and in tons of literature which they send to a person engaged as I am, explaining the wonders of their research. And undoubtedly they are wonderful.

But in the instance of these camphor blocks, G. T. Barnhill, Jr., sales manager, Alcohol and Camphor, wrote me:

"We do not advertise camphor tablets for any specific use. As a matter of fact, we do not advertise them at all, principally because we do not have any scientific data as to their efficiency for the various purposes for which they are used."

This is an instance where big becomes ineffective because the right hand does not know what the left hand is doing. Obviously a company that devotes itself so meticulously to research and to advertising its research does not want a sales manager to suggest that the company puts a product on the market without knowing what it is for or why it should be used.

Now, I have experienced this sort of thing in many large businesses, in which a bureaucratic paralysis sets in because of administrative unwieldiness. An excellent contrast may be made between the smaller Weirton Steel Company and some of the larger steel companies. Weirton, which is very highly managed, is working with satisfied labor, as it has during each steel strike. Its flexibility is responsible for that; they are not subject to the channelling processes of larger businesses; labor easily reaches top management.

A friend of mine suggests, "That it would be a tremendous thing if the major corporations themselves would turn into public servants by selling off heavily, prosperously, with this idea in mind, so far-fetched, because it will have to be done anyhow, sooner or later, either as a result of legislation or judicial decision. For the concentration of control, which is very different from the concentration of wealth, has been broken in the field of financial controls, and it will be broken in the field of industrial control."

Industry would be advised to do the job itself in an orderly constructive manner, before some of the wild boys in Washington lay their hands upon it. (Copyright, 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

ELDERLY PEOPLE

An encouraging condition today is the effort being put forth by physicians and various philanthropic organizations to prolong the life of the elderly and make them happy by enabling them to obtain gainful employment. In the "New England Medical Journal," Dr. Robert T. Monroe, Harvard Medical School, states that individuals thought of, when old people are discussed, are those who need care in an institution. There are, however, young old people who have independent means or are working every day. Many of these will retain their independence and secure medical care if they are given adequate medical attention in illness and convalescence with normal opportunities for play and for living.

Dr. Monroe points out that so called senility or old age is often only physical unfitness; just as men and women of middle age or younger are physically unfit. A vigorous state of exercise and health seldom is continued after the school years, exercise only being taken as a warning to those approaching old age not to try to do the physical work or take the strenuous exercise of earlier years. It was not meant that they should do nothing. Dr. Monroe states that regular exercise and play are beneficial for patients with high blood pressure, arthritis and paralysis.

By nourishing food, enough but not too much rest, and light, regular exercise, the health of both mind and body in the elderly can be maintained for years.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — You can understand why folks get cynical about good government when you watch the parade of little income-tax evaders who are hauled to court every week, while certain big boys get their cases postponed indefinitely.

For instance, it has now been one year since this column—October 19, 1948—first reported the shameful manner in which two road contractors living under the nose of Washington officials, had cheated their government in building the network of macadam roads which wind around the largest building in the world—the Pentagon.

The two contractors, W. J. "Doc" Hardy and F. McKenzie Davidson, had been caught by Treasury agents quick-changing Uncle Sam's out of $500,000 by all sorts of devious tricks. Among other things they made out checks to two other contractors, W. W. Thomas and S. M. Reed, who later gave T-men affidavits that they never received the checks. Instead Hardy and Davidson forged the endorsements, cashed the checks, and deducted this as expense.

However, when the Treasury and Justice Departments finally caught up with them, the two Virginia asphalt kings appealed to powerful Senator Harry Byrd, plus other Virginia politicians. A series of conferences followed. The Justice Department listened patiently, but stood pat.

Last July the income-tax case of the two men who gyped their government of war-contractor taxes was sent to U. S. District Attorney George Humrickhouse in Richmond for criminal prosecution.

This writer, querying Humrickhouse in July, was told there would be no delay in prosecuting the Hardy-Davidson case. It would come before the first grand jury in the autumn.

But when Mr. Humrickhouse was queried this week, he was evasive. The autumn grand jury had been in session for some time.

but he said he had no immediate plans for presenting the case. In July he had said he was quite familiar with the case. But on October 17, he talked as if it was something he had never heard of and devoutly hoped would be forgotten.

Note—Mr. Humrickhouse was appointed to his key job as district attorney through the powerful Byrd machine of Virginia.

President Truman hasn't given up on the Brannan farm program, despite the kicking-around it received from Congress. It will definitely be the farm plank of the Democratic party's 1950 campaign. Truman recently assured National Farmers Union boss Jim Patton.

"The current battle over farm legislation has had at least one good effect," the President told Patton. "It has served to smoke the boys out into the open. We know how they all stand, including some we expected to support us."

The President named no names, but obviously referred to Senator Clint Anderson of New Mexico and Senate Majority Leader Scott Lucas of Illinois. The latter, though keeping out of the headlines, helped to lead the fight against the Brannan income-subsidy program in the Senate.

"I think it's time we took the whole Fair Deal program once more to the people—not only the Brannan farm program and the nomination of Federal Power Commissioner Leland Olds, but everything else Congress has scuttled," advised Patton. "After all, it's the people themselves who have been victimized by this skulduggery."

Truman agreed. "The combination that fought the Olds nomination was about the toughest lobby I've ever seen," he remarked. "You're absolutely right. We've got to take it on and I have every intention of doing so."

Canadian Gongs

White prices of most British and Canadian goods have come down as a result of the pound's devaluation, the Canadian newspaper companies, which usually operate as a cash, have flatly decided not to reduce prices to American newspapers.

This means that the highest newspaper contract prices in history will continue.

It also means that the profits of Canadian newspaper companies will continue at their highest peak, while American newspaper profits are off considerably. Between 1945 and 1948 for instance, Canadian newspaper prices zoomed from $58.50 a ton to $100 per ton, with profits almost trebling.

Profits of such big companies as Abitibi shot from $10,101,512 in 1945 to $25,237,554 in 1948, while Consolidated's profits increased from $10,539,451 to $25,118,345.

Meanwhile the operating profits of a typical cross section of American newspapers dropped 54 per cent.

The interesting fact is that when the shoe was on the other foot, the Canadians immediately put it on. In 1946 when the American dollar was pegged at $1.10 as against $1.00 for the Canadian dollar, the same newspaper companies jumped their prices by exactly ten per cent. But now that the exchange has been reversed, they refuse to drop their prices proportionately.

Note—Of course it was the newspapers which yelled loudest for the end of Chester Bowles' OPA and the price controls which kept newspaper at its low 1945 price. However, it's the small papers representing the backbone of a free press which get hit hardest in the present price gouge.

Moscow Wants Showdown—Intelligence reports from the Balkans indicate that Russian plans to infiltrate Bulgarian, Hungarian, and Rumanian troops into Yugoslavia to start a revolution against Tito. Moscow would then trumpet this to the world as a revolution by Yugoslav patriots and would march across the border. A top American diplomat just returned from the Balkans reports that Moscow is determined to force this showdown soon—partly because it now has the atomic bomb, partly because it is convinced the United States will not fight to defend Yugoslavia....The above facts are chief reason why all American ambassadors from the Iron Curtain countries have been summoned to meet in London.

Wall Street Parleys — Super-secret talks aimed at ending the steel strike are taking place in Wall Street. It probably will be denied, but Ben Moreell of the Jones-Laughlin Steel Company, together with Inland and Bethlehem Steel, are not happy about the strike. All three companies had pension plans before the strike, and at a recent secret meeting in New York, Bethlehem, Jones-Laughlin and Inland all pressured U. S. Steel to yield. Enders Voorhees, who really runs U. S. Steel wouldn't budge.

Breakdown of Government Is 'Obvious Thing' Overlooked by Many Persons

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 21—Some-times it is easy to "overlook the obvious." This time the "obvious" happens to be the breakdown of big government.

For whatever may be said of the record of the 81st Congress, the fact remains that the legislative job has become too big for the present legislative system.

To appropriate $44,500,000,000 is a tremendous job. In wartime, of course, big appropriations slide through in blank check fashion. Whatever the military wants, it gets. The executive prepares the requests and the legislative branch accepts the figures without too much questioning or debate.

In peacetime, the pressure of groups to get some of the $44,500,000,000 is insupportable. Actually there were requests for nearly twice this sum. Had the military budget been accepted by the President as originally planned, it would have run closer to $22,000,000,000 than $15,000,000,000.

The indirect consequences of the session of Congress go far beyond the sums actually authorized for spending. It is the "contract authority" and the starting of projects for which annual sums will be needed for many years hereafter that make the job of appropriating money so difficult even for the members of Congress themselves to follow.

Assuming 100 per cent fidelity to their tasks and leaving out partisanship of any kind, the same measures have been expected on the 81st Congress as on the 80th Congress.

Where billions of dollars are being handed out, the materialistic and acquisitive streak that emerges in any economic democracy sooner or later transformed into political pressure. Whether it is an air force or a navy or an army appropriation, the business interests that can profit by such contracts are very much alert to the opportunities.

Socialists put pressure on both Republicans and Democrats. The 81st Congress put pressure on one armed service but the President or the joint chiefs of staff or the director of the budget requested. It would be easy to blame the executive for excessive spending but fairness does not permit any such conclusion. The executive recommends but the legislative body does the actual spending.

If, therefore, there is a big deficit, it is much more the fault of the Congress than of the President.

Why does Congress insist on spending more than is being collected in taxes? The only answer is to blame the American system of politics—and this means pressures from those persons outside the government who bring the influence of votes to bear on Congress.

So Congress is not altogether at fault. Black home are prospective candidates ready to make political capital out of the failure of members of Congress to vote for particular appropriations desired by their constituents. This is true inside both parties.

The sympathies of the country can well be extended to the Congress. For the work has grown so extensive and the problems so complex that members cannot possibly keep up with their jobs. The number of committees has been cut down by the reorganization plan enacted into law a couple of years ago. Yet the work of the committees has visibly increased.

Members of Congress cannot possibly attend to their voluminous correspondence from constituents, handle callers, study current problems on which they must legislate, attend committee meetings and keep up with the requirements of a 1949 legislative session. It is just too much.

Government has gotten too big. What happened in the session just closed was a collapse of the old system which was tottering anyway. Some better method of coordinating the work of the Congress must be devised. It is not the lengthy debate and talk that consumes time—it is the work of the committees. That situation cannot be helped until the country and the leaders of both parties recognize that, entirely apart from demands for new laws and repeal of old ones, it is a colossal task to decide how to appropriate or allocate $44,500,000,000.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Oct. 20—President Truman's $50,000, tax-free raise in pay, thinly disguised as an expense allowance, is a plain fraud. He already had an expense allowance of $40,000 for which he did not have to render the same sort of account that the treasury requires of citizens and beyond that there is an appropriation of $1,300,000 for the expenses of his office, including "entertainment." The Truman are not lavish entertainers and such parties as they have given have not been extravagant nor expensive. That could be to their credit, for after all, the people pay for these official shows. If this fact reflected economy and a saving to the citizen, the people might applaud the Truman for lightening the load if only to the extent of a few dollars. That would be in the frugal tradition of Calvin Coolidge. But, while the Truman are as stingy as Coolidge, the $50,000 grab, amounting to a tax-exempt gift of $200,000, wrung from the people's pay envelopes in four years, is a dramatic violation of the spirit of Mr. Coolidge, who was no more extravagant with government money than with his own.

An item under a Washington dateline says that for the second year in succession the "formal social season" of the White House has been canceled ostensibly because the White House is still torn apart. That, of course, is a pretext. There are plenty of other quarters in which the Truman could conduct the "formal social season," but if Mr. Truman isn't entertaining he isn't needing the $50,000 this year.

Even if it were entertaining to the full extent of the "formal social season" he would not have to take the strap off that bundle of graft, because he still could charge it to the big appropriation.

There is not the slightest evidence that he has any other intention than to knock down the whole $200,000, as a jackpot for his future and for his heirs. As his daughter's financial future, Mr. Truman is now being delivered from care and responsibilities by Democratic organizations along the route of her travels as a singer. Miss Truman's voice is by no means the best in the concert trade, but the Democrats turn out loyally, as a compliment, or perhaps say tribute, to the head of the party. Her income will be about $100,000 this year.

Under Roosevelt, with his regal pose, Congress and the people came to regard inequities concerning the personal expenses of the presidency as less majestic. Although there is an effective public office in a republic, a prejudice was soon established, which seemed to put any citizen in the wrong who had the bad manners to ask how much Roosevelt was spending. His widow wrote after his death that he spent more than he received while he was President, but that plainly was not true because his fortune increased over the years and anyway no public statement ever was made of his financial affairs.

During his three terms-plus, he had many millions under his hand by authority of Congress for which he was not required to give any account of any of the kind. Even if it be granted that he did not take any of it for himself or slip any of it to relatives the fact remains that he explained away many enormous lumps of expense in general terms which no company auditor would approve. Indeed, the government auditor would approve a $50,000 in an expense statement of a minor employee that was couched in the definitely glib language of some of Roosevelt's "reports" to Congress on the expenditure of

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Copper is riding the high-tails of the building boom. Bright spot in an otherwise drab metal picture, copper ignores the steel strike, which pulled the rug out from under the zinc market, and it thumbs its nose at foreign competition, which laid lead prices low.

Copper's boomlet means happy days in New England brass and wire mill towns. There's some talk again of copper prices going up. That's being watched in the Midwest factories that turn out home appliances, and in the auto centers. It will be watched by the utility companies, still busy stringing copper wires around the nation.

But especially the copper boomlet is being watched in the mining country in the Far West. Copper's happy days haven't echoed back to the mines yet, although the sudden demand for refined copper in the east means that more copper is being bought now than is being mined.

Producers' supply grew to 217,000 tons in August, and although 23,000 tons were whittled off that in September, stocks are still more than twice as big as they were last fall. Therefore, mine production is still being held down—about 20 per cent below the March level—in our western mines. Domestic output last month was 64,000 tons.

However, in Chile output of some mines is being stepped up. We are importing about 30,000 tons a month.

Sales of refined copper, on the other hand, have jumped to better than 103,000 tons a month from the low point in May of 32,000 tons. Although two of copper's best customers, the auto and home appliance industries, are starting to slow down because of the steel strike, other users of copper are buying again in quantity. Why do people suddenly want copper? Here are some of the reasons advanced:

1. About 100,000 persons started to build homes last month. This was 22 per cent more than did in August, and the most for any month since May, 1948. May is usually a peak building month, as people take advantage of good weather ahead. September usually is not. But this year people are building in a counter-seasonal surge.

2. Home building, and the sustained boom in other construction, feeds a demand for brass piping and fittings, copper wire, cable and tubing. Brass and copper mills are getting orders again.

3. But the brass mills were already flooded with orders. At mid-year, copper prices reversed their downward trend. As they started up, many users of finished brass and copper products, who had stopped buying as copper prices dropped, flooded the brass mills with orders. They feared copper prices were going higher still.

4. Some copper fabricators cut their inventories very low last spring. They have been buying copper again, after deciding prices had touched bottom and were starting up, and because they had used up all they had.

5. A four-month strike in a New Jersey copper refinery has cut off about 10,000 tons a month from the usual supply, making for tightness.

6. Refrigerator makers started up their factories in August after slowing down earlier in the year. Copper is used in these and other electrical appliances. However, the steel strike may cut off much of this demand for copper.

7. Government stockpiling has begun again, as Congress made funds available. The amounts the government is buying are kept secret.

8. And, finally, some buyers of copper may have the same motives as the buyers of steel in August and September. Fear of the coming steel strike sent users into the market in the late summer. Some copper users also may be buying to hedge against the possibility of more strikes in the copper industry. They note that the steel strike already has spread to some aluminum plants. They fear it might spread to other metal working mills.

Good Actors Die Broke

The other night I had dinner with a drama critic, and afterwards we dropped into a theatre in the 40's and watched the last act of a play from the back of the house.

After the final curtain call, we strolled up Broadway and discussed the performance of the star of the show.

"He's terrific," I said, feeling that a profound observation was in order.

"He's a bum," said the critic. "Let's not split hairs," I said. "He works steady and, the way I hear it, he's got plenty of money in the bank."

"That only proves he's a bum," said the critic. "Good actors usually die broke."

"All right, Mr. Bones," I said. "Why does a good actor usually die broke?"

"Because," said the critic, "he submerges his personality in the role he is playing and works for the good of the show as a whole, rather than personal glory. Consequently, people remember the role rather than the actor who played it. On the other hand, stars like the fellow we saw tonight play themselves year in and year out—same posturing, same voice tricks. Let me ask you, have you ever seen Katharine Cornell, Lynn Fontaine or Judith Anderson and forgotten whom you were watching?"

"Sir," I said, "you are speaking of the women I love. And as for playing a role, what about Helen Hayes in 'Victoria Regina'?"

"Exception that proves the rule," said the critic. "The case of Ina Claire is more to the point. Ina had to retire because she got too old to play herself."

"You're piling on the arsenic plenty thick," I said. "Next thing, you'll be telling me that no one in the theatre today compares with the stars of thirty years ago."

"The old timers, as a rule, were even more hammy," said the critic. "Richard Mansfield, Edwin Booth—great personalities, but atrocious actors."

"Can you give me an example of a real one?" I asked.

"I could give you a dozen," said my friend, "but you wouldn't recall the names. The best of the lot was Moffat Johnston."

"Johnston," I mused. "Sound familiar, but maybe I'm thinking of the flood."

"Moffat was an honest actor and a superlatively good one," said the critic. "His characterizations were so skillful that the customers, seeing him in two different plays, seldom knew they were watching the same man. But who remembers him now—except a few stage-struck dopes like me?"

"What was he in—on Broadway, I mean?"

"Six Characters in Search of an Author," said the critic. "R.U.R., 'King Lear,' 'Macbeth,' 'The Devil's Disciple' and a dozen other distinguished shows. He played the lead in '20th Century,' a role that John Barrymore got rave notices for when he did it in the movies, but the difference was that Johnston became the part, while on the screen the part became Barrymore."

"Whatever happened to Johnston?"

"The anonymity finally got him down," said the critic, "so he decided to do something to make theatregoers remember him. He wrote a play called 'The Stag at Eve,' in which a detective, to be played by himself, appeared in twenty-seven different characterizations. It was a tour de force, of course, but one calculated to make both critics and public sit up and take notice."

"It flopped, I suppose."

"It did not," said the critic. "In fact, it was a great success in the summer theatre where it was tried out, and immediately penciled in for a fall opening. But unfortunately the constant strain of playing himself down finally caught up with Johnston, and shortly before his play was due to open on Broadway he died. "Which proves," I said, "that it's better to be yourself, even if you're an actor."

"Which proves," said the critic, "that the actor who plays himself is no actor and, ergo, the star we saw tonight is a bum." (Copyright, 1949, by Billy Rose) (Distributed by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Tobacco Worms

Berkeley, Calif. (AP)—Tomato and tobacco hornworms range farther than the two plants for which they are named, reports Dr. Harold T. Reynolds of the University of California. His studies show that these creatures use the Jimson weed (which nobody cares about) as a base of operations from which to attack potatoes, peppers, and eggplants. Tomato and tobacco hornworms are closely related by Dr. Reynolds says an entomologist can easily tell them apart. Both have been chewing up American plants since Colonial days and they've recently got to be quite a pest in California.

Almost Got Away

Two young men, sought five hours for an alleged car theft, tried to run a police gauntlet in a 30-ton paper trailer-truck—and almost got away. They might have, except for Rockland County Under-sheriff George Fensner. The sheriff's aide, on guard at a road block on Route 9W with other officers, wondered why a truckload of unwanted waste paper should leave the Nyack Waste Paper Salvage Co. plant. Pursuing police stopped the truck and arrested Donald A. Shumeroth, 20 (133 Fort George avenue) and Jack Shahan, 19 (431 Audubon avenue) both of Manhattan. Police of five villages, state police and sheriff's men had been hunting them.

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Yugoslavia was elected to the Security Council over Russia's vehement protests but the roof didn't fall in and the United Nations went along with its routine today.

Nobody walked out. It appeared that nobody will walk out.

It left the United Nations wondering what were the "painful consequences" Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky warned after the 58-nation General Assembly chose Yugoslavia yesterday in preference to Russian-supported Czechoslovakia.

There was no indication when the consequences might come. A Czechoslovakia Embassy spokesman in London said last night there is no prospect that the Soviet bloc nations would walk out of the United Nations as the result of the Yugoslav victory.

"No doubt," he said, "this is what many western countries would like us to do."

Secretary of State Acheson said here last night he didn't foresee any rift in the U. N. because of the election.

The Soviet Ukraine, which sits now as Russia's only teammate on the Security Council, doesn't vacate its eastern European seat until the end of the year. There was every indication that Russia and her satellites until then at least, would pursue their usual course. They said Yugoslavia's election over Czechoslovakia would never be considered legal.

Vishinsky forced a brief, wry smile when on the first of two ballots Yugoslavia got 37 votes, only two shy of the total she needed. Yugoslavia won the second with 39 to 19 for Czechoslovakia. But he sat through the session and so did the others of the Soviet bloc, including Foreign Minister Vladimir Clementis of Czechoslovakia.

Woman, 22, Faces Central to Make No Suspensions of Service Locally

Mrs. Madsen under the German penal code.

Madsen was killed by a bullet from a 45-calibre army pistol as he returned from the party.

The U. S. Air Force said Lt. Andrew W. Madsen, 26, of Oakland, Calif., was shot early yesterday in the living room of his home near the Rhine-Main air base. The announcement said he died from a bullet fired from a 45-calibre army pistol.

The air force gave this account: Madsen and his wife attended a party given by friends in an American community near Frankfurt. Mrs. Madsen quarreled with one of the women present and then left the party, early in the morning, driving the family car home.

Half an hour later Madsen was driven home by a friend.

"As he entered the house he was shot through the heart," the announcement said.

Mrs. Madsen, summoned to the Rhine-Main base provost marshal, Capt. W. C. Hlman, who lives directly across the wooded lane. She told Hlman her husband was lying injured on the living room floor of the home, the air force said. When Hlman arrived, he found Madsen dead.

Madsen told her husband in Germany at Christmas, 1947. The air force said her two children, four-year-old son named Dana and a daughter, Nancy, 11 months old, were in the temporary care of other air force officers.

Mrs. Madsen was taken this afternoon from the hospital, where she had been under treatment for pneumonia, to the U. S. civilian court in Frankfurt.

Madsen's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Madsen, lives at 7812 Sunlight Drive, Oakland, Calif.

Central to Make No Suspensions of Service Locally

Beginning at midnight Saturday the New York Central Railroad will drop 89 trains from its schedule because of a rapidly dwindling coal supply. It was announced today. This represents about 10% of the Central's steam operation.

The officials also cautioned that there would probably be delay in remaining steam-operated passenger trains due to the exhaustion of the high grade coal necessary for passenger train operation. A lower grade of freight train coal must be used.

Many of the line's passenger trains are diesel engine operated. The New York Central is canceled by the New York Central on the main line east of Buffalo are the following:

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—A flurry of demand for airline stocks put a little life in a plodding market today.

Airline issues were uniformly higher but the balance of the market displayed a ragged price pattern. Fractional changes ruled, with gains and losses well divided.

A morning burst of buying of airlines helped to step up volume, as well as considerable turnover in Bonquet Consolidated Mining at the unchanged price of 2 1/4. Aside from this specialized interest, business was comparatively slack.

Faint hints that a break in the steel strike might be shaping up were offset by news that coal operators had walked out on contract talks with the striking United Mine Workers (U. M. W.). Wall Street was still of the opinion that the White House will be forced to take a hand in settling the coal and steel strikes although President Truman indicated yesterday that he had no immediate plans for intervention.

In the airline division higher prices were paid for Pan American, American Airlines, United, Eastern, and Transcontinental & Western Air.

Favorable earnings reports evidently stimulated interest in air carrier issues. American reported net income for the first nine months of nearly $6,000,000, against a net loss of around $3,500,000 in the comparable 1948 period.

Also up were Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Chrysler, Studebaker, Goodrich, J. I. Case, Dodge, Aircraft, Presstek Steel, Westinghouse Electric, International Paper, Nickel Plate, U. S. Gypsum, and International Mining, the last on news of a resumed dividend.

Quotations by Morgan Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, 60 Beaver street, New York city, branch office, 41 John street, R. B. Osterhoudt, manager.

However, if what you said is true — that most people take for granted it belongs on the left — then at a crowded table someone might eat salad intended for the person on the left. If coffee or tea is also to be served with the meal, then of course there would be no place for the extra salad plate at the right. Perhaps that is how the custom of placing it on the left began.

Hoffman-Byrnes, Ardonia Couple Married in Modena

The marriage of Miss Margaret Louise Byrnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver T. Byrnes, of Ardonia, to DeWitt Hoffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Hoffman, Sr. of Ardonia, was performed Sunday, October 16, in the Modena Methodist Church. The Rev. Mr. Adams officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white satin gown fashioned with orange blossoms and chintilly lace waist line and a skirt with short train. A satin headpiece decorated with plumes caught her attention. She carried a prayer book with a white gladiolus mark.

Miss Camille Cassone of Brooklyn as maid of honor wore a light green tulle gown trimmed with velvet ribbon. The bridesmaids were Janice Byrnes, sister of the bride, Anne Schaefer, cousin of the bride of Farmingdale, L. I., and Gertrude Kopaski of Plattekill, niece of the bridegroom. All wore green tulle gowns. They wore bouquets with plumes in the same color as their gowns and carried gold and bronze chrysanthemums.

The groom, DeWitt Hoffman, is a graduate of the Ardonia school and Highland High School. Mr. Hoffman attended Highland High School and served as sergeant in the army during World War II. He served in the South Pacific area for two years.

Carl Ambrosio of Ardonia was best man. Ushers were Walter Linder of Ardonia, Raymond Beck of Walden and Alex Conforti of New York city.

A reception for 300 guests was held at the Moore Temple in Newburgh. The couple left for a two weeks wedding trip through the southern states. They will live in Ardonia where the bridegroom is employed by his father-in-law in Byrnes Bottle Gas.

West Point Organ Recitals Announced

West Point, Oct. 20.—The usual fall series of organ recitals at the Cadet Chapel, United States Military Academy, West Point, will be resumed with the first recital Sunday, October 30. It was anticipated that the series would have to be omitted this fall because of the installation of a new console. However, the delay in the delivery of the console and the electrical connections between the last gallery section of the organ which were temporarily severed are being restored.

The recitals are presented Sunday afternoons at 4 p. m. and are open to the public free of charge. Parking space is in the vicinity of the chapel is provided.

October 30 the guest artist will be John Huston, organist of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn. Succeeding programs will be presented November 20 and December 11. On the former date the program will include as a special feature an Armistice Day number by Widor, combining the use of organ, trumpets, trombones, and timpani. The December recital will feature Christmas music. Detailed programs will be given later.

Rifton Auxiliary Installs Officers

Ladies Auxiliary of the Rifton Fire Company held installation of officers recently at the Village House. Frank Frisbie acted as installing officer and Mrs. William Zerbe as marshal.

The newly elected officers who were installed are Mrs. William Walker, president; Mrs. Louis Palkowicz, vice president; Mrs. Milton Von Der Leith, treasurer; Mrs. George Clement, secretary; and Mrs. Harry M. Krom, news reporter.

Mrs. Charles Elmendorf, Mrs. Sanford Phillips and Mrs. Louis Hornbostel were elected trustees. Mrs. Louis Hornbostel will act as cheer chairman. After the meeting a social hour was enjoyed.

Catholic Daughters Cancel Games; Plan Officers' Party

The social evening of games which was scheduled by the Catholic Daughters of America Court Santa Maria, 164, for Friday evening has been cancelled.

The officers' party will be held Thursday, Oct. 27, at 8 p. m. in the Knights of Columbus Building. Entertainment will be given by the Junior Catholic Daughters. The public is invited.

'Better Hope for Peace'

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP)—The Presbyterian Synod of New York State believes the United Nations is "a better hope for peace than the Atlantic Pact." The Synod expressed its views in a resolution adopted last night at the concluding session of its four-day annual conference. The Synod urged that agreements, such as the Atlantic Military Alliance, "should not become substitutes for creative and creative programs" like the European Recovery Program.

Deplores Deformed Feet
Liverpool, England (AP)—The president-elect of the British Medical Association said today 90 per cent of British women are deforming their feet by poor choice of shoes. Professor R. P. McCurray told the Liverpool hospital. "Nature intended woman's big toe to be on the inside of her foot. But she wears shoes in which the point of the toe is in the middle of her foot." When husbands mention this to their wives, he said, they are told to mind their own business.

Charges Newkirk Fooled People On Assessments

Following is an abstract of the speech delivered Thursday evening by Francis J. O'Neill, Democratic candidate for mayor:

With deep humility and obligation I speak about the affairs of our city, humbly, I say, because one who aspires to the highest office of his city must appreciate the serious problems he faces; obligation, because no man is worthy to be mayor unless he be truthful, honest and forthright.

Monday evening the Mayor, over this station, complained that the Democratic opposition accused him of fooling the people on assessments. No such accusation had been made. It must have been the Mayor's feeling of guilt, which gave him a premonition.

I do accuse the Mayor of fooling the people on assessments. Let me give you the truth about this 33 and one-third per cent assessment raise. Monday night the Mayor pointed out there was a raise of almost $20 in the tax of one assessed $4,000. The cash outlay by you contradicts his previous statements.

On June 11, 1948, he said the tax increase "will be so slight that no one need become deeply alarmed about it." Compare your tax bill with 1947. May 11, 1948, the Mayor published a completely phony tabulation of figures, attempting to prove that the assessment increase would mean practically nothing, and the increase on a $7,000 house would be $1.53.

You may recall that June 7, 1948, he said the increase was intended "to take the burden off the home owners." Here are facts: The Whalen Drug Company building on Wall street, and the two Walter Reade theatres, owned by out-of-town corporations, were let off with an increase of only some 15% resulting in an assessment loss to Kingston of over $67,000.

The current assessment for the New York Telephone Company is only $5 more than it was in 1947. The West Shore Railroad increase was less than 8 per cent. The American Telephone and Telegraph assessment only $3 more than it was in 1947. The Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation's assessment is a small fraction of 1 per cent higher than in 1947. In these four instances the total assessment loss amounts to more than a half-million dollars, and added to the $67,000 loss on the other properties mentioned amounts to over $600,000. When I am Mayor there will be no favorites.

Special treatment given a few and the burden of increased taxes placed upon small home owners is unfair. This the Mayor has done. It is inexcusable to charge him with violating his trust and neglecting to be fair and equitable with the people who elected him.

In my political and private life I have always fought fairly and hard and always shall I propose to take other matters from the record, pointing out that citizens of Kingston have been victimized by an administration policy of favoritism to a few at the expense of many. I shall be back on the air again Monday night at seven o'clock and hope you will listen.

METACAHONTS

Metacahonts, Oct. 21.—There will be a Halloween party at the Metacahonts hall Monday night, Oct. 31. Each person attending is requested to bring doughnuts and sandwiches or coffee for refreshments.

Mrs. John Lennon and daughter of Albany spent the past week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Osterhout.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Weigle and family of Schenectady spent the week-end at the home of their sister, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Kolder and family.

BARBS

A Washington man was arrested for driving while eating off a tray attached to his car window. The cops were the car cops.

The heating systems in some apartments are likely to become the best known flat failures this winter.

With some of the kids we've seen, every day is a fresh beginning.

The weather deserves a lot of credit for its nerve to disagree with some women.

Mother Can't Act for Son in Staying Divorce

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Nevada divorce still separated a father and mother today, despite their five-year-old son's legal effort to cancel it.

The lawsuit to set aside the decision, filed through the mother as guardian, was dismissed here yesterday by State Supreme Court Justice Samuel H. Hofstadter.

He said the mother could not do in the child's name what she could not legally do herself.

The boy's suit contended the Reno court lacked jurisdiction. Mrs. Francis Faram won the divorce at Reno in 1945 from a New York lingerie manufacturer, Henry Faram.

The new suit, brought in the name of their child, Ronald Henry Faram, said the father misrepresented his wealth in agreeing to pay $35 a week for the boy's support. The child asked for $50,000 damages.

When the suit was filed, the boy's attorney, Bernard Kaufman, said Mrs. Faram could not sue because she was a party to the divorce. He said the case would be appealed.

Picture of Russia Given by Acheson

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Here's how Secretary of State Dean Acheson sizes up Russia: "The aggressively imperialist power of our times, seeking to expand its dominion where its grasp and its reach coincide, and to cause confusion and disintegration where its grasp fails short."

Acheson said in a speech last night that one set of problems in U. S. foreign affairs "arises from the conduct in international affairs of the Soviet Union" along these imperialistic lines.

The secretary addressed a dinner of the Alfred E. Smith Memorial Foundation. The foundation was incorporated in 1946 "to perpetuate the ideas of Alfred E. Smith by raising funds to aid the poor, the sick and the underprivileged."

Acheson said there also is a second set of problems in American foreign affairs. "These," he said, "are the problems of economic, social, political, which arise, as in Europe, from the disruption of war and changed relationships with other parts of the world — as in Asia, from a great awakening of peoples to a new revolution against the acceptance of poverty and hunger and to a consciousness of national independence."

"These two sets of problems are interrelated. The thrust of Soviet imperialism in eastern Europe or Asia affects not only those areas, but their relations with other nations. x x x

"Similarly, the success or lack of success of parts of the free world in gaining strength and stability affects the direction and figure of Soviet thrusts. So few problems are isolated. Most are part of a very complicated mosaic."

Acheson urged a greater understanding by the public of the big foreign policy issues. "It is the American citizen, he said, 'acting through public opinion and through the congress, who decide the contours of our policies and whether those policies shall go forward or waver and stop."

"It must not be afraid to tell the truth when that is painful and unpleasant, as it was in the China white paper," he declared. "It must not be afraid to recommend and fight for courses which are hard and long when any other course would be a deception and a fraud."

Progress in County Under Republicans Outlined by Kelly

Joseph Kelly, candidate for the office of alderman-at-large on the Republican ticket, in an address Thursday, evening outlined the duties and functions of the office of the president of the common council and briefly summarized the accomplishments of the Republican Party in Ulster county. He spoke in part as follows:

There's no mystery to why Senator Wicks' is being mentioned all over New York state as the next Republican candidate for governor when the accomplishments of the party in Ulster county are spread out for study.

I'll name a few and leave them for your consideration: There's the Tunnel Clinch which was dedicated today. This $450,000 project kept a force of men busy on its construction and in the future is bound to be one of the nation's leading centers for the diagnosis and treatment of that dread killer—cancer.

Elimination of the Broadway Railroad Crossing talked about for 30 years, will soon be a reality. Buildings are being razed and actual construction is due to begin shortly. This improvement to be brought about by the expenditure of almost a million dollars, will furnish jobs for men in this vicinity. And when it is completed everybody will appreciate the convenience being able to drive over Broadway uninterrupted by railroad traffic. And with the passing of the crossing, a great danger point will vanish. Fire trucks and ambulances will travel without a holdup.

The new dormitory at New Paltz State Teachers' College another million dollar job is furnishing laborers and skilled mechanics with work. When it is finished students of this area seeking training in the field of teaching will have better accommodations and comfort as they continue their education.

A million and a half dollars is being spent at Napanoch Institution for Defective Delinquents. This means food on the table, clothing, and other necessities of life for workmen in the building field. When the project is finished, unfortunately who are wards of the state will have greater facilities for equipping themselves to go out and take their place in society again.

Kingston is one of six cities in New York state setting an additional building on armory property to house military supplies. It is the only one in the state.

"These," he said, "are the problems of economic, social, political, which arise, as in Europe, from the disruption of war and changed relationships with other parts of the world — as in Asia, from a great awakening of peoples to a new revolution against the acceptance of poverty and hunger and to a consciousness of national independence."

is under construction, giving jobs to workmen in this area. When hearings were held here for Kingston, County Attorney Fred Stang represented The People free of charge, considering it a community service. Senator Wicks and Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk were present to testify that canceling the bridge would be a disadvantage.

When the Kingston-Rhinebeck Ferry, a private enterprise, ceased operation, Senator Wicks had a boat put on the run by the State Bridge Authority for the convenience of motor and passenger traffic.

And, the biggest project of the job, a 14 million dollar bridge between Kingston and Rhinecliff is bound to become a reality. Survivors have been made as to the approaches on both sides of the river and the day will come when traffic will pass over one of the most modern spans across the Hudson.

Girls Leave Home, Send Message on Record
Freeport, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP)—The fathers and mothers still can hear their daughters' voices. But where are the girls now? "Don't look for us... we know how to take care of ourselves... there are too many places we can go for you to find us..." the voices say.

The voices come from a little phonograph record that arrived in the mail yesterday. It apparently was made in some penny-arcade in nearby New York city.

But the girls themselves have vanished. They left supposedly for Freeport High School Wednesday morning and never arrived. Police said the three are Mabel and Barbara Batchler, 13 and 14, and their 14-year-old playmate, Marilyn Gross.

First Championship Broadcast

Coach Bill Burke to Miss Crucial Kingston-N.F.A. Game Saturday

Stricken With Virus; Cunningham in Charge

Undeclared Penn Ace Headlines Boxing Show

Kingston High School's undefeated football squad will have to make its bid for DUSO League supremacy in its crucial game Saturday against Newburgh Free Academy without the guiding genius of Maroon coach Willard Burke, it was announced this morning at the high school.

Badly weakened by a seige of virus pneumonia, the Fox of Burke Hill has been ordered by his physician to remain in bed for the next several days.

Line coach Russ Cunningham will be in charge of the Maroons for Saturday's contest which is scheduled at 2 p. m. in Newburgh.

NFA Keyed Up
Burke's absence from the Kingston bench will cause a sharp revision of predictions and estimates for the contest that may decide the DUSO pennant.

While few, if any, Hudson valley or conference experts were willing to go out on a limb and predict a Newburgh victory, a wave of optimism in the Hill City indicated the Academicians are "up" for a tremendous battle.

Kingston has been quoted as favorite by margins ranging from six to 12 points but the fact that Burke will be no closer to the game than the radio is expected to decrease Maroon chances.

Chase Meets KHS
One DUSO veteran, former Coach Al Chase of Port Jervis, is the only top ranking football figure who has flatly predicted a Kingston victory. He called the score as 12 to 8.

While the news of Burke's continued illness has caused some apprehension among the student body and followers of the squad, the varsity players have been sharp in practice this week.

Coach Cunningham has been

Bantam Keglers in Special Match

A group of bantam bowlers in the 11-12 year old bracket sponsored by Johnny Ferraro of the Bowldrome will make its match game debut on Saturday at 1 p. m. at the Cornell street alleys against a bantam squad representing St. Peter's Church of Rosendale.

Members of the team are Jack Dawkins, Jr., Robert Dawkins, Henry Jacobs, Tony Altamore and Rudy Thoenberger.

Claim Mack Knew About Ouster of Simmons, Brucker

Philadelphia, Oct. 21 (AP)—Release of Coaches Al Simmons and Earle Brucker by the Philadelphia Athletics Board of Directors was not news to Connie Mack and had his approval, says an executive of the American League club.

Connie Mack, Jr., A's treasurer, made that plain last night in a radio interview, as he said the board didn't consider Simmons and Brucker were doing a good job.

"The confusion was caused by the fact Dad just hated to part with his two old friends," Connie, Jr., said.

"But he knew it was for the best interest of the ball club and went along."

Connie, Sr., said shortly after the Simmons-Brucker release was made public that the move had been made without his approval. He was not available for comment last night.

It was the original intention of the club to give Simmons and Brucker a chance to resign but a slip-up in the front office let the story out prematurely, young Connie added.

The lanky son of the 36-year-old owner-manager of the A's also said:

1—His Dad may retire as acting manager after another year, his 50th, as "pilot" of the American League club, but that he is still running the club regardless of reports to the contrary.

2—Earl Mack, one of Mack's three sons, will be the A's next manager. Earl has been assistant manager for a number of years.

3—Jimmy Dykes, who was retained as a coach, is well liked by the club management and it is hoped he'll be around for many years.

Sixth Ward Edges Schuler Quintet

Last minute duces by G. Fitzgerald and Chappie Van Derzee broke a 44-44 deadlock to give the Sixth Ward septa squad a 48-44 decision over Schuler's Inn in last night's Y Autumn League basketball feature at the Y court.

Schuler's led 19-18 at halftime, but the Sixth Ward outfit moved in front 35-33 at the three-quarter mark. The clubs were never separated by more than four points.

Carter of Schuler's was the individual scoring leader with 13 points, with Gruenwald tossing in 12. G. Fitzgerald's 11 paced Sixth Ward.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Here are the results of another session behind the crystal football.

They follow by a week a list of forecasts that was 813 correct—61 right guesses and 14 incorrect. The season's average is 228 to 53 or .811.

Army over Columbia: Columbia is the only team to have beaten Army since the days of Blanchard, Davis & Co. That upset came two years ago, 21 to 20. Army has personally advised Lou Little that "it is ready this time." It could be a massacre but probably won't.

Kentucky over Southern Methodist: Perhaps Don Walker's illness will inspire the other S.M.U. players to do better but there is nothing like having a healthy All-America player in your backfield. Kentucky is the nation's leading offensive and defensive club among the majors.

Minnesota over Michigan: If Michigan gets its passing attack functioning, this could very easily go the other way. But with Minnesota this close to the Rose Bowl, why should the Gophers falter?

Pittsburgh over Indiana: Pitt has a winning streak and the Hoosiers have lost all four this season. Neither string will be broken Saturday.

California over Washington: The Huskies are trying out an all-sophomore backfield in the middle of the season. That's too late.

Cornell over Princeton: Cornell's one-two punch of Lynn Dorset and Hilary Chollett probably as good as anything in the east. Princeton's attack is basically sophomores.

Oklahoma over Nebraska: Nebraska is rated on a par with Kansas and last week the all-winning Oklahomans founced Kansas by three touchdowns.

Southern California over Oregon: This could be the Trojan's second straight defeat because Oregon has been waiting for this game since the 8 to 7 affair a year ago.

Skipping over the others in a hurry:
Friday
Boston College over Georgetown, Detroit over Wayne, Georgia over Miami (Fla.), George Washington over Washington & Lee, Temple over Rhode Island, The Citadel over Furman, San Jose State over Santa Barbara, Drake over St. Louis.

Saturday
East: Boston University over New York University, Amherst over Wesleyan, Brown over Lehigh, Colgate over Rutgers, Dartmouth over Harvard, Penn over Navy, Massachusetts over Rochester, Yale over Holy Cross, Williams over Tufts, Syracuse over Fordham, Union over Hobart, Villanova over Duquesne, West Virginia over Quantico.

South: North Carolina over Louisiana State, Alabama over Mississippi State, Maryland over North Carolina State, Georgia Tech over Florida, Duke over Virginia Tech, Tennessee over Tennessee Tech, Tulane over Auburn, Vanderbilt over Arkansas.

Midwest: Michigan State over Penn State, Missouri over Iowa State, Illinois over Purdue, Iowa over Northwestern, Ohio State over Wisconsin, Kansas over Oklahoma A. & M., Tulsa over Bradley.

Southwest and Far West: Texas over Rice, Baylor over Texas A. & M., U.C.L.A. over Washington State, Texas Tech over Arizona, Texas Christian over Mississippi, Stanford over Oregon State, Nevada over Fresno State, Hardin-Simmons over Houston, Colorado over Utah State, Wyoming over Utah.

Sunday
St. Mary's over San Francisco, Santa Clara over Loyola, Canisius over Scranton, St. Bonaventure over Niagara.

Rohrback, Crack Middleweight Has Two-Year String

A middleweight undefeated in two years of campaigning in the amateur ranks will appear on E'nal Brith's card in the municipal auditorium, Thursday night, October 27.

Bruce Rohrback from Harrisburg, Pa., is the leather pusher who will come to the local ring without a blemish on his record, according to David "Doodle" Popick, co-chairman of the B. B. boxing committee.

Popick, who is in complete charge while Chairman Bill Slinger is away attending a realtor's convention, said Rohrback's opponent will be Tony Bell, Boston's best 160 pounder, a sailor who holds the middleweight championship of New England.

Rohrback, a rangy lad with long arms is regarded as a crafty ringman capable of mixing it with any scrapper his weight, amateur or pro, said Popick, and we expect he'll be a real hit with Kingston fans.

Has Grand Record
In Tony Bell, the followers of E'stinna will see a real tough customer, according to the Brith boxing boss, who signed him after recommendations from Ben M. Becker of Albany, boxing chairman of the Adirondack District of New York state.

The boys in the other three five-rounders topping the card are rated as good action battlers, indicating a program of scraps that will equal the two winners shows recently promoted by the local organization.

Libby Manzollito, the Jeffersonville lightweight who fought his way into the hearts of auditorium fans, starting as a preliminary better, will meet Poughkeepsie's Willie Smith in the semi-final. Manzollito is the favorite. He's a busy puncher with a stunning wallop, and bids fair to becoming a main bout fighter in the very near future.

Two new faces are due in an other draw. Johnny O'Sullivan, 23, rugged scrapper with a good punch, will meet Ben Sygatt of Harrisburg, a rough and ready light-heavyweight of promise according to his coach, Pat Roaty.

Hardy Returns
Jimmy Hardy, knockout victor over Blawatha White of Albany will be in from Canaan, N. Y., again to take up where he left off as a popular favorite before boxing ceased for a while. Hardy is a hard hitter with a string of knockouts to his credit. His opponent will be Tony Speaks, another Harrisburg area. He holds the championship of central Pennsylvania.

Two of the three rounds on the bill are:

Harry Smith, 125, Canaan vs. Rulus Holbert, Albany.
Bob Hornbeck, 165, Poughkeepsie vs. Ralph Hobbs, 168, Troy.

Starting time of the first bout is 9 o'clock. Tickets are on sale at E'nal Brith club, Wall street, and may be reserved by phone.

Teachers of City To Attend Parley

CLAYTON SEEBERT

Preparations are being made for the annual South Eastern zone meeting of the New York State Teachers Association in New York, Friday, October 28. The vast majority of Kingston's teachers will attend the conference and the city's schools will be closed that day.

Clayton A. Seebert, teacher, Poughkeepsie High School, and president of the zone, estimates that about 6,600 teachers will attend the meeting. One of ten to be held throughout the state.

Kingston's representatives in the House of Delegates, governing board of the zone, include Mrs. William Murray Warren, Russell and Miss Miriam Halloran. This group will convene at 2 p. m. Friday to discuss zone business and elect officers.

Sarah Van L. Gulick of New Paltz is on the zone executive committee.

General sessions will be held at 9 a. m. when all teachers will convene at one of two meeting places. President Seebert will preside at the meeting in Carnegie Hall where organ music by Marguerite Waters, supervisor of music, Poughkeepsie, will open the program.

City Center of Music and Drama will be alternate meeting place with Vice President Paul J. Ansel presiding. Robert D. Williams, director of music in Newburgh Public Schools, will provide organ music.

Each group will hear addresses by Miss Helen C. McCormick, president of the New York State Teachers Association; Dr. William E. Goslin, superintendent of schools, Pasadena, Calif.; and Mrs. Emilie Jacobson, noted journalist, linguist and observer.

Section meetings will be held Friday afternoon. The following are sections and chairmen: Elementary, Mary A. Ryan Rider, Spring Valley; Intermediate, Leona M. Benjamin, Yonkers; Joint Junior-Senior High School, Ovid F. Parody, Peekskill; and Paul J. Kozars, Ardsley. The classroom teachers' forum will be conducted by Clara Ritter Foster, chairman of the classroom teachers committee of the south eastern zone.

51 Per Cent of Families Own One Automobile
Washington, Oct. 21 (AP)—Fifty-one per cent of 50,400,000 American families own at least one automobile. One out of 17 owns two or more.

Seventy-seven per cent hold life insurance policies with premiums above $100 a year. Seventy-one per cent have bank accounts or government savings bonds, and 45 per cent own a home or a farm.

But only nine per cent have an interest in a business, and only eight per cent own corporate stock.

The Federal Reserve Board so reported today on the basis of a summary survey it took early this year. It counts only those families living together and pooling incomes for expenses.

The survey also included a question to this effect: Suppose you had more money than you needed for expenses, would you think it wiser to put it in a savings or checking account, buy government savings bonds, invest in real estate, or buy common stock?

"Only savings bonds met with overwhelmingly favorable comment," the board reported, adding that it found 92 favorable comments on savings bonds for every 41 on savings accounts, 16 on checking accounts, 14 on real estate and eight on common stock.

Court Won't Force Home To Give Up Children
Albany, N. Y., Oct. 21 (AP)—An Armenian shoemaker who went back to live in his Russian-controlled native land has lost his court fight against two Catholic institutions for custody of three of his children.

The Court of Appeals unanimously upheld yesterday a lower court decision that Hompatzian, Choolokian, formerly of New York city, was not "fit, competent or able" to regain custody.

Justice J. Edward Lumbard, Jr., of State Supreme Court said in denying Choolokian's suit Dec. 31, 1947, that the children would lose their "previous and transcendent" rights of American citizenship if they rejoined their mother and father.

Do You Remember

by SOPHIE MILLER

I was just given a "Cyclists' Road Map" of Albany-Troy district, showing all the roads and points of interest, with the cycling roads distinguished by red lines. It was prepared for Albany Bicycle League in 1898.

In the descriptive folder it explains "The highways in the territory covered by this map being with few exceptions, natural dirt roads whose quality is affected by weather and other causes."

Under Albany County, it says: "There is hardly a single road in this county which, judged by the usual standard, would be termed first-class. The scenery throughout the Hudson and Mohawk valleys is exceptionally fine. North of the city of Albany and east of the Shakers in the town of Colton, the roads are generally dirt ones which will be found fair to good except within 24 to 48 hours after rain. West and south of the city, a sand belt extends for about 5 to 10 miles out. This is crossed by the Albany-Schenectady Cycle Path. Three plank roads and the Bethlehem Stone and River Roads Cycle Path and Stone Road are the best in this vicinity and are always rideable."

The map itself is as large as today's auto maps and in many colors. No doubt the cyclist had to disembark from his two wheels and find a good spot to spread his 1898 map. Roads were marked in different shades to represent brick, asphalt, macadam, granite, bluestone and connecting byways. Also hills of over five feet were marked by special lines denoting up or down grades. So no doubt folks with good pumping breath could take a chance on cycling roads with a few hills. Special marking also told whether the cycling roads were bad, poor or good.

The word "Toll Gate" was sprinkled all over this 1898 map on various roads. Speaking of local Toll Gates during the Plank Road days, one old timer who had a team of horses told me that he used to watch when the toll gatekeeper wasn't at his post and then he'd drive through the gate with plenty of speed and to save the toll. One time, he thought he made it, but on coming back, there was the toll gatekeeper watching for him, and made him pay two fares before he'd let him through the gate.

For some time I have had in my possession an interesting book called "The Master, Mate and Pilot" given me by Mrs. Barnett, wife of Captain James H. Barnett, James and his brother, William, for many years worked for Cornell Steamboat Co. Before that they owned their own boat, "The Empire" which did towing in the New York harbor.

This book covers the Hudson-Fulton Celebration in detail with illustrations of maps, letters and ship pictures. Also has a "Brief History of the Life of Henry Hudson." "The Battery" is covered where Peter Stuyvesant made his historic proclamation February 2, 1653.

Who knows something about "the first life boat"? This book tells about its origination in 1802 in England. It was built by shipwright from plans of his own invention, and Parliament voted him 1,200 pounds as a reward for his time, trouble and ingenuity. This fine old boat did excellent service for over 70 years.

Most of the boats we know up to about 1900 are covered in part of a book called "The Steamboats of the Hudson"—a history of the river craft that have plied the world famed stream since Robert Fulton days. It gives tonnage, when and where, built, stories about them and many illustrations.

I notice "The Annex", an inland towing steamer of 16 tons, was built at Kingston Point, N. Y. in 1881. Who remembers shipbuilding at Kingston Point? Many boats give their birthplace as Rondout, N. Y.

Mrs. Nessel said, as she explained that all of the rehearsal time will be devoted to group playing.
All youngsters who were in the band last year received membership cards and will be admitted again this year by showing their cards. All new young people in Kingston or surrounding communities who would like to join are asked to meet with the band at the next rehearsal, October 28, when if they qualify for or show quick adaptability to ensemble playing will be given members' cards for the Juvenile Band.
Last year the band made several public appearances in the institutions in Kingston and were well received.
Serving with Mrs. Nessel making arrangements for the band are John Valentine, William Steuding and John A. Cole.
The Juvenile Band is one of several projects sponsored by the 215 who also provide concerts at the hospitals, for the aged, and for public pa dances.
